Description

The soldiers of the Dromedary Regiment, created by Bonaparte in Egypt in 1799, generally carried a light cavalry or hussar saber (Model 1776 or 1777). Brass mountings. Single-branch guard. Long-tailed cap. Wooden handle wrapped in black waxed calfskin. Guard stamped "À VIENNE." Curved, hollow-edged blade signed "À VIENNE" on the back, identical to the guard. Length 87.5 cm, width at the heel 3.5 cm. Scabbard typical of the Dromadaire Squadron; made of wood covered with black waxed calfskin, featuring two red copper fittings with cut-out edges; red copper studs and rings. Very good condition; a red copper disc on the pommel, matching the scabbard fittings. Length of the weapon: 102 cm. France. Late 18th century.
