Description

An imposing Renaissance-style fireplace carved from walnut: this fireplace rests on sturdy jambs hidden behind two carved busts of bearded Atlanteans; the lintel is decorated with flowers in coffered panels and a frieze bearing a Latin inscription, which reads from the side and the front: "Corona serum, Hic lares hic quies hic veterum memoriae, filii filiorum," evoking family continuity and the memory of ancestors. The impressive mantelpiece features a more understated ornamentation but highlights the family coat of arms, consisting of clovers and a clawed bear's paw surmounted by a helmet. Renaissance-style mantelpiece from the 19th century, in generally good condition: a few chips and missing pieces, cracks, and scratches. Overall dimensions: Height 330
