Adam-François Van der Meulen 1632/1690: baptized on January 11, 1632, in Brussels and died on October 15, 1690, in Paris, was a Flemish Baroque painter originally from Brussels. In 1646, he studied under Peeter Snayers in Brussels, then became part of the Antwerp school, before entering the service of the Spanish Archdukes. A master of depicting horses and landscapes, his reputation spread beyond borders, and in 1662 he was summoned to Paris by Charles Le Brun, chief
