Description

This painting is a beautiful 19th-century composition directly inspired by a work by the French painter Jean-Baptiste Pater (1695-1736) and, more specifically, it is a version of his famous genre scene titled "The Happy Family"...Throughout the 19th century, particularly during the Second Empire and the era of Empress Eugénie, high society developed a genuine fascination with the 18th century. This trend, known as the "Neo-Rococo" style or the "Marie-Antoinette" taste, inspired 19th-century painters to create numerous high-quality reinterpretations of the masters of the "fête galante" (such as Watteau, Lancret, and Pater). In its original gilded stucco frame The painting has been carefully restored and re-varnished ...Dimensions: 60x73 cm and 94x82 cm with
