Description

Pair of solid mahogany armchairs, Empire style, 19th-century. They feature a beautiful, understated, and balanced silhouette. The palmette-shaped armrests reflect the decorative style of the First Empire. The slightly sloping backs provide excellent seating comfort. The armchairs retain a beautiful wood patina and traditional upholstery. They have been reupholstered and used sparingly, and therefore retain a structure in good condition, although the seat is somewhat dry. A stable and solid set, ideal for a living room, office, or library. This pair perfectly illustrates the elegance of early 19th-century French furniture.
