Description

A very beautiful lamp made from an 18th-century bronze oil lamp that has been converted into a modern lamp. It features its parchment shade. The round base has a raised rim designed to prevent debris from falling onto the surface where the lamp is placed. It has a central shaft with beautiful turned detailing and a finial in the shape of a double-headed eagle. A very elegant early 18th-century oil lamp that has been converted to electricity. In superb condition (standard restorations). We include the lampshade. Delivery available in Belgium, France, and internationally. On display in our 2,500 m² showroom at 41 Rue Henri Wafelaerts, 1060 Brussels, Belgium. More information and photos available upon request.
