the recommendation of his principal teachers, Bertin and de Regnault. Having exhibited for the first time at the 1824 Salon, he specialized in history and genre painting, but above all in portraiture. He produced a considerable number of portraits and exhibited them at nearly every Salon between 1827 and 1879.? Lépaulle possessed undeniable talent, as highlighted, for example, by the Journal des Beaux-Arts et de la Littérature in 1839: "... his ease, his skill with the brush, his rich and brilliant color, and his astonishing ability to render details... ." He is represented in the galleries of Versailles by full-length portraits of Admiral de Rigny, the Duke of Plaisance, and Napoleon III. He is also responsible for the paintings in the Saint-Vincent-de-Paul Chapel at the Church of Saint-Merry.Dimensions with frame: 67.5 cm x 56 cmCanvas dimensions: 48 cm x 38.5 cmFor your information, we always respond to all requests for information via emailPlease remember to check your spam folder
