Description

Small Louis XVI/Directoire-era chest of drawers, dating from the late 18th century and originating from eastern France. It features an elegant marquetry design crafted from several types of wood, including rosewood, lemonwood, and plum wood, offering beautiful contrasts in color and a refined geometric design. The chest of drawers opens with two large drawers and rests on four tapered legs. It is topped with a gray marble slab. An elegant, well-proportioned, and decorative piece, representative of the neoclassical style of the Louis XVI / Directoire period.
