Description

An elegant Empire-style mahogany game table, dating from the late 19th to early 20th century. It features a beautiful three-part folding top, upholstered in red leather with gold-decorated trim, offering a generous surface area when unfolded. The apron opens to reveal two front drawers, adorned with gilded bronze handles. The particularly elegant base is distinguished by its lyre-shaped legs, connected by a turned crossbar. The four slightly arched legs are topped with remarkable gilded bronze feet decorated with animal paws, which emphasize the refined character of the piece. The richness of the mahogany, combined with the red leather and gilded bronze, gives this table a very elegant and decorative presence. A refined piece that can be used as a game table, side table, or small desk,
