Description

Candela table lamp, designed by Michele De Lucchi for Produzione Privata, went into production in 2001. Produced in a limited edition, this lamp is one of the first creations released by the company founded by De Lucchi to produce experimental objects in small batches, far removed from industrial production. Comprising a circular painted metal base supporting a cylindrical tube of clear glass that encloses the light source, this lamp stands out for its minimalist design and interplay of transparency. The light is diffused evenly through the glass, highlighting the purity of the lines. Three filters--one red, one black, and one green--can be inserted to change the lighting. Produced in a limited edition, this lamp is presented in its original box. Edition: Produzione Privata, circa
