Description

A set of three nesting tables made in Switzerland around 1970. Crafted from fossilized stone, they consist of square tabletops with rounded corners resting on monolithic legs with square cross-sections. The surface reveals numerous cephalopod and gastropod fossils, dating back approximately 340 million years, making each table a one-of-a-kind piece where design and geology converge. Height: 33 to 43 cm Switzerland, circa 1970
