Description

Set of 2 Togo sofas designed by French designer Michel Ducaroy in the 70s. They have been reupholstered with an orange velvet fabric. Revolutionary when it was launched, it shook up the furniture codes of the 1970s. At a time when sofas were based on a wooden structure and exposed legs, Michel Ducaroy imagined a seat made entirely of foam and placed directly on the floor. A unique approach that offers exceptionally enveloping comfort. Inspired by a tube of toothpaste folded on itself, its bold design breaks with the standards of the time and contributes to making the Togo a true icon of French design.
