Description

Elegant tall planter from the Art Deco era / Modern (circa 1930), in the style of the famous interior designer Jean-Michel Frank. This piece stands out for its hammered wrought-iron tripod base, which perfectly mimics the organic texture of intertwined branches (a style known as faux bois). The upper section features a large oval planter made of patinated metal (zinc), held in place by a band of wrought-iron spikes reminiscent of a garden fence or a nest. Its sculptural and minimalist design adds a raw, poetic, and highly decorative touch, ideal for a contemporary interior, a sunroom, or a chic winter garden. Style: Brutalist, Rustic Chic, Art Deco, Faux Wood
Materials: Solid wrought iron base, patinated metal tray Condition: Beautiful vintage condition with a superb patina (natural
