Description

A lost-wax bronze sculpture with a patina by Henri Collomb* (1915-1983) depicting the head of a Black man, likely an African president from the 1960s or 1970s, indeed, this sculptor is well-documented and received numerous commissions from the French government, and it is likely that a president from the Central African Republic or elsewhere may have commissioned this sculpture from him to decorate his Parisian apartment. Furthermore, the foundry is Clementi de Meudon, which cast bronzes for Miró, Arman, Alechinsky, Niki de Saint Phalle, Stalhy, Barcelò, and the great Hervé Di Rosa. Among the government commissions awarded to Henri Collomb are: "Pointer Dog," on loan to the National Assembly since 1952 "Seated Nude" in wood, on loan since January 11, 1960, to the
