Description

Important bronze animal sculpture signed by Esposito, depicting a powerful bird of prey with its wings spread wide, attempting to capture a snake above a richly detailed naturalistic setting. The particularly dynamic composition captures the full tension of the struggle between the predator and its prey, in a remarkable upward movement. The bird of prey, rendered with great realism, features finely chiseled plumage, with every detail rendered with superb mastery. The snake, coiled at the base, provides a sinuous counterpoint that enhances the balance and expressive power of the whole. The scene rests on a quadrangular pedestal with geometric decoration, supported by four molded feet. The quality of the casting, the richness of the modeling, and the nuanced brown patina lend this
