Description

Important Art Nouveau-style sideboard - École de Nancy - Circa 1900 Imposing Art Nouveau dining room sideboard, in the style of the École de Nancy, crafted from natural wood and burl wood, featuring beautiful warm tones and exceptionally refined detailing. The front, with its architecturally composed and perfectly balanced design, features four doors and two drawers. The door panels are highlighted by remarkable burl wood with highly decorative grain patterns. The central section is embellished with a beautiful carved design of flowers and foliage, characteristic of the naturalistic style of Art Nouveau. This ornamentation continues along the central post and in the upper frieze. The metal handles and keyholes harmoniously complement the overall design. The upper section is crowned
