Gallois (1882-1965) was a French painter, watercolorist, and illustrator renowned for his delicate depictions of architectural heritage and regional costumes. Active during the first half of the 20th century, he specialized in views of cities, historic monuments, and picturesque scenes from provincial France (Paris, Brittany, Touraine, and Eure-et-Loir). His watercolor work is distinguished by its highly precise architectural lines, a subtle mastery of light, and a palette of soft, nuanced tones. In addition to his works from life, Gallois published several richly illustrated reference books devoted to folk arts, folk costumes, and traditional decorative motifs. Worldwide shipping
