Description

17th-Century Italian School -- The Vision of Saint Jerome (or The Ecstasy of a Saint)Period: 18th centuryMedium: Oil on canvasCondition: Re-stretched, old reinforcement patches on the back, standard restorationsFrame: Frame with black and gilded molded moldings (cassetta style) Oil painting on canvas depicting a Baroque religious scene rendered in vigorous and theatrical chiaroscuro. The composition depicts a saint (presumably Saint Jerome or Saint Francis) lying at the bottom of the painting, caught in a state of ecstasy or a heavenly vision. Above him, amid dark and dramatic clouds, appears a draped, winged angel, bearing the divine message. The pronounced use of tenebrism, the interplay of deep shadows, and the bright highlights on the figures and drapery are entirely characteristic of
