Description

ALPHONSE STENGELIN (1852-1938) -- LANDSCAPEOil on panel depicting a wooded area, with a path winding through dense vegetation and trees bathed in diffused light. The free and vibrant brushwork particularly well conveys Stengelin's interest in landscapes and the play of light.Alphonse Stengelin, born in Lyon in 1852 and died in Satigny in 1938, was a painter, engraver, and lithographer of the Lyon School. A student of Joseph Guichard at the École des Beaux-Arts in Lyon, he developed a body of work devoted primarily to landscapes, rural scenes, and seascapes. He regularly visited the Netherlands, whose landscapes occupy an important place in his work.His work is represented in several French and European public collections, notably at the Museums of
