1933, his studio was located on Rue Dieulafoy in Paris. He painted landscapes of Paris, the Manche department--particularly in La Hague--Brittany (Quiberon, Saint-Malo...), the Riviera (Saint-Tropez), the Pyrenees, the Beauce region, and the Basque Country (1948), as well as Orientalist scenes during his stay in Morocco (Marrakech, Meknes...). His Moroccan works are particularly sought after today. He also painted portraits and, above all, numerous nudes.
