Description

Superb Quality 19th-Century Mahogany Three-Tier Revolving Bookcase
An attractive 19th-century mahogany revolving bookcase with slatted sides, a square solid mahogany top with a molded edge, above a three-tiered bookshelf with quarter sections divided by plain mahogany slats running from top to base, fastened with brass studs. The entire piece stands on cross stretchers with a revolving framed iron base and iron fittings, ending in brass casters. The piece has a superb original color and patina. In terms of condition, this revolving bookcase is in excellent original condition, boasting a rich patina on the solid mahogany, which speaks to its quality craftsmanship and the care it has received over the years. The figured mahogany exhibits a rich, warm patina, enhancing its visual appeal. This tall
