Description

This cherry wood farmhouse table, an authentic relic of the Louis-Philippe era, showcases the elegance of its weathered wood and the softness of its warm grain. Its balanced silhouette is brought to life by elegantly carved turned legs, which give it a presence that is both rustic and refined. The large, seamlessly integrated side pull-out offers additional surface space with a fluid motion, while the large, discreet drawer--featuring a wooden pull knob--adds a touch of functional charm. Together, these elements create a generous, solid piece designed to last for generations, where rustic simplicity meets the bourgeois elegance characteristic of the Louis-Philippe style.Period: Mid-19th centuryExcellent condition following restoration in our workshop.Finish:
