Description

This rosewood marquetry chest of drawers elegantly embodies the spirit of the Transition style, a period when the sensual curves of the Louis XV style gradually gave way to the symmetry and precision of the Louis XVI style. Its delicately curved body, with a recessed front and beveled side panels, creates a harmonious silhouette that reflects craftsmanship inspired by the great cabinetmakers of the 18th century. Rosewood, chosen for its warm, rosy hues, reveals marquetry of remarkable finesse, where geometric motifs and the central floral design complement one another with a precision that underscores the quality of the craftsmanship. The veined pink marble top adds an extra touch of elegance, while the ring handles, corner finials, central trim, and gilded bronze feet enhance the piece with a refined luster. The curved legs extend the softness of the Louis XV style, yet their already straighter lines foreshadow the neoclassical influence of the Louis XVI style, creating a subtle balance between movement and structure. This piece, crafted in the mid-20th century, follows in the tradition of prestigious furniture that respectfully reinterprets the decorative codes of the 18th century, offering a strong and timeless decorative presence. It immediately lends an air of distinction to any interior, whether placed in an elegant entryway, a refined living room, or a characterful bedroom, and captivates with the richness of its materials, the precision of its marquetry, and the nobility of its style.Period: Mid-20th centuryIn good condition following restoration in our cabinetmaking workshopA chip on the back of the marble (see photo)Finish: Waxed over shellacDelivery available upon quote in France and internationallyDimensions:Width: 71 cmDepth: 38 cmHeight: 80 cmInterior dimensions of drawers: 54 x 26 x 13 cmReference: 667V
