Description

A very beautiful set of fish-shaped wall sconces, embellished with rock crystal inlays. This is a 1970s design, potentially attributable to Duval Brasseur or Henri Fernandez. During that era, many designers used the technique of repoussé and hammered copper to create original, chic designs. The set is in good overall condition; the wall sconces are wired for electricity. Note that one of the stones forming one of the fish's eyes is missing, but this is not a major issue. See photo for dimensions: 63x42 cm.
