Description

An elegant scene of a stroll in a park, featuring two women in formal dresses--one in white with a parasol, the other in bright yellow--accompanied by a small dog. The light, vibrant Impressionist brushwork and luminous color palette evoke outdoor scenes from the Belle Époque. The background, rendered in broad, verdant brushstrokes, suggests a French garden with a balustrade and a pond. The frame label reads: Marguerite Aers--Early 20th century. Signed lower right. Oil on canvas, framed in a carved and gilded wooden frame. Marguerite Aers was a Belgian painter (1872-1957), known for her genre scenes and elegant depictions of high society life in the Impressionist tradition.
