Description

A bowl of peaches resting on an entablature draped in white, set against a muted-toned interior. The loose brushwork and warm color palette--pinks, ochres, and greens--are in keeping with the French Post-Impressionist tradition. The composition, centered on the fruit motif, demonstrates a confident mastery of the genre. Jean Picart le Doux (Paris, 1902-1982), a French painter and graphic artist and a student of Fernand Léger, is best known for his tapestries and posters, but he also practiced easel painting throughout his career. Signed lower left. Oil on canvas, framed in a carved gilded wooden frame.
