

PROANTIC
LE PLUS BEAU CATALOGUE D'ANTIQUITES

Pair Of Large Iron Landiers, Late Period, Louis XVI, Early 17th Century

400 EUR

Period : 16th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Wrought iron

Description

Pair of Large Wrought-Iron Fireplace Grates - High Period - Late 16th / Early 17th Century
A beautiful and imposing pair of solid wrought-iron fireplace mantel brackets, dating from the Haute Époque, late 16th or early 17th century. These fire grates feature a particularly sturdy construction, characteristic of accessories for large antique fireplaces. Each piece consists of a thick, vertical upright, topped by a large, rounded finial, and resting on a widely open arched base. Long, sturdy hearth bars extend toward the back and were designed to hold large logs at a distance from the back of the fireplace to ensure proper air circulation. The entire piece is crafted from thick, particularly heavy wrought iron, reflecting traditional blacksmithing techniques and a design built to last. The iron now features a beautiful

Dealer

Galerie Christophe Elisabeth

Galerie Christophe Elisabeth

Mobile : 06 99 48 80 76

1 domaine de Montrabech

Lézignan-Corbières 11200

brown, oxidized patina, with the irregularities and signs of wear characteristic of objects that have actually been used in a fireplace. A pair of fire grates with beautiful proportions and a commanding presence, particularly decorative in a large antique fireplace, a home of character, a castle, or a country house. Period: High Renaissance - late 16th / early 17th century Material: solid wrought iron Distinguishing feature: particularly heavy pieces Condition: beautiful antique condition, with wear and oxidation consistent with their great age.