Description

Important bronze sculpture - Woman dancing with a putto - Signed Lequesne - 19th century A beautiful and important bronze sculpture with a brown patina, depicting a young woman in a dancing pose, accompanied by a putto. The female figure, dressed in a loose, antique-style tunic, is depicted in a particularly expressive pose, with both arms raised and her gaze turned toward the sky. At her side, a winged child appears to be participating in the scene, holding aloft an attribute. The ensemble rests on a large, richly carved naturalistic base, adorned in particular with foliage, bunches of grapes, and fruit, evoking a Bacchic world. The modeling is particularly meticulous, both in the facial expressions and in the rendering of the drapery and botanical details. The base bears the signature
