Description

Pair of walnut armchairs - Restoration Period / Charles X - 19th century An elegant pair of walnut armchairs, dating from the first half of the 19th century, in the style of the Restoration Period - Charles X. The armchairs feature a simple and balanced design, with a upholstered rectangular backrest, a generous seat that is slightly rounded at the front, and turned front legs. They are particularly distinguished by their sculpted armrests topped with broad scrolls, resting on turned supports. The wood has a pleasant, warm, and aged patina. The backrests and seats are upholstered in a fabric featuring floral motifs and medallions, in shades of red, ochre, yellow, and green, accented by a traditional finish of brass tacks. The pair forms a particularly warm decorative ensemble, equally at
