Description

A superb Art Deco sculpture in regul, with a green patina, depicting a male athlete in a victorious and elegant pose. The figure, with a finely sculpted, athletic body, strides forward with confidence while his right arm rises toward the sky, holding a laurel branch--a timeless symbol of victory, glory, and success. The nuanced green patina elegantly highlights the musculature, the facial details, and the dynamic movement of the composition. The piece rests on a substantial base of veined black marble, whose understated, mineral-like quality particularly accentuates the sculptural silhouette. A decorative piece with a strong character, where strength, movement, and Art Deco elegance converge. With its commanding presence and refined aesthetic, this sculpture fits equally well into a
