Description

A pair of gilded and patinated bronze lions attributed to Antoine-Louis Barye (1795-1875), depicting a lion with a serpent and a lioness holding her cub. They rest on a double marble pedestal, one with a rounded top in white marble, the other rectangular in turquoise blue marble. They are joined by a "twisted ribbon" in gilded bronze and each rests on four glide feet. Given their small size, these two lions were likely produced in his studio before 1845, a time when his early works may not have borne the artist's mark or signature. Dimensions of each bronze: Height: 12 cm, Width: 15 cm, Depth: 7 cm. The piece is in very good condition, rare in this patina.
