Description

A 5-light chandelier in gilded bronze of great finesse from the Napoleon III period. This model is indeed very faithfully inspired by the Napoleonic III neoclassical style but its design suggests it was crafted in the second half of the 19th century, during the Napoleonic III period. Several technical and stylistic elements support this dating: the regularity of the chains, the threading of the mounting rods, and the mechanical precision of the fittings are characteristic of artistic bronze work from the Second Empire by firms such as Barbedienne or Picard. Original mercury gilding from the first half of the 19th century--during the Empire or Restoration periods--generally shows signs of wear and a more matte patina. The brilliance and uniformity of this gilding suggest the work of a
