Description

Carved oak chest, a 19th-century piece in the Neo-Gothic style. The front is punctuated by vertical carved panels featuring Gothic window designs, foliage, and architectural motifs. The sides feature the same decorative style and are fitted with drop-down iron handles. Hinged lid, reinforced with two iron fittings featuring openwork decoration. Central metal lock plate. Single-compartment interior. Traditional construction with assembled panels and stiles. Shows signs of wear, marks, small cracks, and repairs consistent with its age and use. Wood-boring insect damage is visible on some parts; their current activity status is unknown. A few small chips and imperfections are visible, particularly on the lower sections and the reverse side. Dimensions: width 88 cm × height 61 cm ×
