Description

A Louis XVI-style sideboard, likely made in the late 19th or early 20th century. Rectangular frame made of wood and wood veneer, featuring a top drawer and two doors on the front that open to reveal an interior with two shelves. The front features a symmetrical inlaid design composed of floral motifs, foliage, vases, and circular medallions. The drawer is decorated with leafy branches surrounding a central motif. Fluted side panels and tapered legs fitted with gilded metal rings and feet. Vertical molding and the edge of the top are finished in gilded metal. Dimensions: H. 115 × W. 64 × D. 42 cm. Original condition with patina and signs of use. Scratches, marks, and variations in color are visible, particularly on the tabletop and sides. Isolated wear on the wood and metal fittings.
