Description

A beautiful 19th century Wedgwood Jasperware urn, featuring the iconic combination of a deep blue ground with finely detailed white relief decoration. The elegant Neoclassical design is characteristic of Wedgwood, with a continuous frieze of classical and mythological figures surrounding the upper section of the bowl. The urn has a generous circular form with two gracefully curved handles, also decorated with applied white details. A delicate border of acanthus leaves runs around the lower part of the bowl, while the underside is particularly attractive, decorated with a radiating pattern of finely modeled white foliage. The bowl is raised on an elegant flared pedestal stem, finished with another decorative band of white leaves. The Wedgwood piece is mounted on a carved wooden
