Description

This remarkable piece from Malicorne, crafted in the workshops of Emile Tessier, is a curiosity from the folk tradition of the first half of the 20th century; with its complex shape, this large covered soup pot has definite decorative appeal and is one of the traditional wedding gifts. Its striking lid handle, shaped like a round cage forming a chimney and surrounded by two rearing lions, small flowers, and a valiant heart, along with blooming flowers, raised decorations, and rope-style bands--much like the faux side handles--
