Description

An original polychrome porcelain box shaped like a car, resting on an elegant four-wheeled gilded brass base and featuring a long drawbar. The box, made entirely of porcelain and glazed on the inside, features rich hand-painted decoration. The various sides are adorned with polychrome bouquets of flowers and scenes of children by the sea, with sailboats on the horizon. The roof-shaped lid is also decorated with flowers and prominent gilded motifs. The finely crafted gilded brass frame highlights the box's contours and forms the axles, the four wheels, the platform, and the drawbar. The object bears a blue-painted mark on the underside of the base featuring an "S" accompanied by two crossed lines, a mark similar to those used by the Samson Company for some of its pieces in the
