

19th-century Porcelain Pitcher

220 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : A restaurer

Material : Porcelain

Description

A beautiful Parisian porcelain pitcher dating from the early 19th century. White and gold, decorated with a scene dedicated to friendship (titled at the top of the design), wolf's teeth, and ferns. The pitcher is in perfect condition, with no chips or cracks. The gilding is in very good condition. The stopper, however, is damaged (the damage is not visible when the stopper is placed on the pitcher), and the handle--originally made of white porcelain with a gold border--has been replaced by a bronze knob, which does not clash with the rest of the object. Total height: 24.5 cm Total width: 15 cm First half of the 19th century A beautiful piece despite the damage to the stopper. Export: customs fees are your responsibility
