Description

Celadon Fo Dog, mounted on an 18th-century French fire-gilded bronze base. Rare Chinese sculpture depicting a seated Fo Dog, made of porcelain or stoneware with celadon glaze, China, 17th century. The animal is depicted in a majestic pose, with the stylized features characteristic of Chinese Buddhist guardian lions. The sculpture rests on an 18th-century French fire-gilded bronze pedestal, richly adorned with decorative motifs in relief. The octagonal pedestal features a frieze of foliage and interlaced motifs, as well as fluted pilasters and molded feet. China, 17th century. Celadon Dog of Fo. French fire-gilded bronze pedestal, 18th century. Materials: celadon, fire-gilded bronze. A particularly decorative ensemble, combining an ancient Chinese sculpture with an elegant 18th-century French
