Description

The rectangular top, made of original planks bearing clear signs of wear and age, has a weathered surface that attests to the object's authenticity and long history. The structure rests on four tapered legs, connected by perimeter crossbars and diagonal braces--a design typical of work furniture intended to ensure stability and sturdiness. On the front are two drawers with wooden fronts and original knobs, once used to store tools, documents, or craft supplies. The piece as a whole reveals a simple yet extremely functional design, characteristic of furniture intended for workshops, artisan studios, or domestic service areas. The aged patina, the irregularities of the wood, and the signs of wear make this table an authentic and highly charming piece, ideal as a coffee table, desk, console table,
