Description

A pair of oil-on-canvas paintings depicting scenes of daily life in Madagascar by the Malagasy painter Amboise RAKOTO Both paintings are signed--one in the lower left corner and the other in the lower right corner--and dated "50" for 1950.The color palette of each painting consists of monochromatic tones: yellows and greens for one, and pinks and greens for the other. The brushwork is broad and lively; with just a few brushstrokes, the painter has perfectly captured the lives of the Malagasy people in their daily activities. Both paintings are in their original condition. One has a small dent at the top of the painting, near the frame--nothing serious--and the other has a few very small spots that will disappear upon cleaning. These paintings are unvarnished; a light coat of varnish would help
