Description

An antique and significant animal sculpture in régule with a bronze patina, depicting a majestic stag standing on a rocky outcrop. Work by Émile Grégoire (1871-1948). The sculptor paid particular attention to the naturalistic rendering of the coat, musculature, and head. The stag stands on a naturalistic pedestal mimicking a rocky escarpment and adorned with plant motifs. On the reverse, the base features a relief medallion adorned with two crossed flags set against a rising sun. Beautiful brown patina with golden-brown highlights. 69 cm tall Excellent condition Émile Grégoire (1871-1948) was a French sculptor whose career dates back to the late 19th century. He was a laureate of the Salon des Artistes Français and received an honorable mention in 1901. His body of work includes
