Description

A rare and elegant pair of castle curtains dating from the Second Empire period, crafted from a sumptuous blend of silk, linen, and metallic threads, featuring a lush floral design inspired by the grand 19th-century furnishings textiles. The luminous gold background is embellished with a woven design of flowers, foliage, and stylized pomegranates in shades of brown, caramel, dusty rose, and garnet red. The quality of the weave, the richness of the patterns, and the subtle shimmer of the metallic threads give this set a remarkable decorative presence. This pair comes from a set of two identical pairs originally from a prestigious residence. The other pair is for sale on this site. The curtains are fully lined and retain a few original hanging rings at the top. They come with their superb original trimmings, including
