Description

Pair of Murano Glass Flutes by the Ballarin Masters - Hand-Blown Glass, Lume Technique
Elegant pair of Murano glass wine flutes, entirely handmade using the traditional lume technique by the renowned Ballarin masters. Among the oldest and most distinctive techniques associated with Murano glassmaking, lume work is carried out using a small gas flame to melt and combine different types of glass, allowing the glassmaker to create refined and original combinations of colours and forms. The technique may involve the use of glass rods, murrine, as well as precious materials such as gold and silver. It requires considerable skill, precision and creativity. Historically, lume work was particularly distinctive as it was the only Murano glass technique that could also be
