Description

An elegant French inkwell from the early 19th century, crafted from finely chiseled bronze and gilded with mercury, resting on a refined wooden base. The central element is embellished with a delicately modeled sculpture in the round depicting a winged cherub holding a dart, a classic symbol of romantic and artistic inspiration.The composition is enriched by two side inkwells and a quadrangular container, all perfectly integrated into a harmonious structure decorated with neoclassical ornamental motifs. The warm, luminous gilding highlights the craftsmanship's details, lending the object great refinement and prestige.The solid and elegant wooden base completes the ensemble, providing stability and a pleasing color contrast with the gilded bronze.A piece of great charm and quality,
