Description

A finely carved oak side chair from 18th-century France, executed in the Régence style. The chair features a scrolled crest rail with a central shell and floral motifs, three vertical splats with arched detailing, and a shaped lower rail echoing the apron's gentle curves. The turned legs are joined by a stretcher with baluster carving, giving the piece both elegance and stability. Crafted from solid oak, the chair retains a warm, aged patina that accentuates its grain and centuries of use. Structurally sound and well-preserved, with minor wear consistent with age, it forms one of a matching pair (see ref. 26-0460). A graceful example of French Régence craftsmanship; refined yet rustic, ideal for collectors and interiors seeking authentic 18th-century character and sculptural charm.
