Louis XVI Half-moon Console Table

15 000 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Gilted wood

Description

This stunning late 18th-century Louis XVI half-moon console table embodies the elegance characteristic of the Neoclassical style and is a masterpiece of Neapolitan cabinetmaking.The frame, crafted from finely carved and lacquered wood, features fluted, tapered legs that stand out for their clean lines and harmonious proportions. The top, crafted from white statuary marble in a distinctive semicircular shape, is meticulously finished and enhanced by a decorative border featuring classical motifs. The frieze beneath the tabletop is embellished with carved rosette details and geometric motifs--distinctive elements of the Louis XVI style--that highlight the symmetry and refinement of the entire piece. The light-toned patina finish lends the console table a timeless charm, making it ideal for both classic settings
