Description

This 19th-century chestnut wood carpenter's workbench is a true example of Italian craftsmanship. Carefully restored, it retains its sturdy and solid structure, typical of period furniture, while the surface has been expertly polished with a wax finish that enhances the wood's natural grain. Its generous dimensions make it ideal not only as a display piece but also as a functional element for spaces with rustic or industrial decor. The patina of age gives the workbench a distinctive character, bearing witness to a long history of use.
