Description

A charming pair of Louis XIII-style children's armchairs, featuring beautiful proportions and plenty of character. The wooden frames, likely made of oak, rest on beautiful twisted turned legs, joined by crossbars. The seats and backs are upholstered in antique leather with a beautiful fawn color, secured with large decorative brass tacks. Also noteworthy are the pretty rosette-patterned tacks on the backrest posts. The leather has a beautiful aged patina, with a few signs of wear visible in the photographs, which add to the charm and authenticity of this pair. A rare model in these small, child-sized dimensions, ideal both in a bedroom and as a decorative piece in a home with character. Sold as a pair.
