Description

A charming miniature painting depicting a bouquet of assorted flowers arranged in a vase resting on an entablature. This particularly meticulous composition features roses, cornflowers, daisies, and small wildflowers in a delicate, luminous color palette. The circular painting is presented in its original square frame made of blackened wood, featuring a molded groove and a gilded inner border. The piece evokes the small decorative paintings of the late 19th or very early 20th century. Unsigned work. An old handwritten and numbered label is preserved on the reverse. Period: circa 1900. Dimensions: 14 x 14 cm. Condition: good overall condition. No cracks. Some wear, scuffs, and small areas where the frame's patina is missing, visible in the photographs and consistent
